The Buzz

Furtney makes Four-Ball semi

Remember this name: Megan Furtney.

A junior at St. Charles North who lives in South Elgin, registers for tournaments from Chicago, and is already committed to Duke University, Furtney and teammate Erica Shepherd of Greenwood, Ind., made it to the semifinals of the recent U.S. Women's Amateur Four-Ball Championship at El Caballero Country Club in Tarzana, Calif.

Say what you will about the Four-Ball replacing the Public Links a few years back on both the men's and women's schedules, the fact is they've been popular with players and, especially on the women's side, have identified a passel of new players.

Furtney is one of them. She teamed with fellow 17-year-old and future Duke teammate Shepherd – the winner of last year's U.S. Girls Junior – to run through the field until running up against a pair of 20-year-olds in the semifinals: Katrina Prendergast of Sparks, Nev., and Ellen Secor of Portland, Ore., who scored a 3 and 2 victory over Furtney and Shepherd. The duo from Colorado State then knocked off the all-Chinese (with a twist) pair of 16-year-old Lei Ye and 17-year-old Yachun Chang, 1 up after being 2-down with five holes to play.

The twist for Ye and Chang? Ye is from the People's Republic of China, Chang from the Republic of China, a.k.a. Taiwan. Peace through golf.

Furtney has hummed along since bouncing back from a bizarre injury last year. The pinky finger on her left hand was crushed between a table leg and a table, and she nearly lost the fingernail. Two surgeries and four months later, she's good as new. She tied for eighth in the IHSAs Class 2A tournament last fall, and is off to a great start with this showing playing with Shepherd.

If that name rings a bell, it's because Shepherd advanced to last year's Girls Junior title match on the 19th hole of the semifinals when opponent Elizabeth Moon raked a missed par putt back without Shepherd having the time to concede it and then saying "I didn't say it was good," causing a stinkaroo that Shepherd didn't need.

Furtney and Shepherd were 13-under-par in a pair of matches the day before – including the usual match-play concessions – to advance to the semis, ignoring 14 mph wind and temperatures in the 50s. They piled up eight birdies in the quarterfinals against Pepperdine teammates Momoka Kobori of New Zealand and Hira Naveed of Australia, and still only won 2 and 1.

By advancing to the semis, Furtney and Shepherd qualify for next year's Four-Ball in Jacksonville, Fla., provided they stay a team.

EYE ON SPEARS: Local broadcast maven and website operator Rory Spears, who occasionally contributes photos to this publication, and was kind enough to allow IG publisher Tim Cronin to guest host his Saturday morning gabfest on WNDZ-AM 750 recently, had scary news for his readers in his Golfers On Golf column. He'll need laser surgery on his eyes because of cataracts. We bring this up because several pals insist on wearing sunglasses to counteract the damage the sun can do.

Said the ever-optimistic Spears, "The good news is that all is curable, and by late summer I should no longer need to wear glasses anymore. I am looking forward to that, but the next couple months until all is settled won't be a lot of fun. It will also limit how much golf I play. I'm still good from about 140 yards and in, but following my drives and fairway woods is now a challenge. I don't like asking the rest of my foursome where my ball went all the time."

We could toss in a one-liner here, but we'll just wish him well. By the end of summer, he'll be at and over the 500 mark in courses played, and with his vision fixed, ideally find the ball in the middle of the fairway.

QUICK START: Jason Czabaj of Deer Park used a birdie on the par-4 16th as the difference in his one-stroke victory over Naperville's Gregory Long on April 21 in the opening one-day tournament of the season in the Illinois Junior Golf Association. Czabaj's 3 helped him to a 6-over 76 at Gleneagles Country Club's Woodlands layout in Palos Park, and became the difference-maker when he and Long bogeyed the last.

COLIN CHROMY of Naperville and Matthew Buckley of Elmhurst each scored 78. There was a field of 32, averaging 84.53 strokes, for the first IJGA tournament of a season that runs until the IHSA's high school season begins.

REMKE RESURFACES: Terry Remke of McHenry started as general manager of RedTail Golf Club in Lakewood on March 20.

Ten years ago, he was charged with stealing more than $10,000 from the Lisle Park District, where worked at the golf course. He eventually pleaded guilty to a Class B misdemeanor and received two years' probation, plus repaid $169,593, including his pension, the Northwest Herald reported April 7.

Lakewood officials knew of and investigated Remke's past, which he noted on his job application. He had worked the past 11 years for Euclid Beverage.

"Mr. Remke demonstrated a very sincere remorse for his role in the 11-year-old incident, and I believe very earnestly he wants nothing more than an opportunity to redeem himself and to get back into the world of golf, his passion," village president Paul Serwatka said. "And in Mr. Remke's case, I believe a second chance is warranted."

Remke had no comment to the Herald, beyond "One of these days, I'll talk."

Hardy has the look of a winner

This is not the regular corner to hang out on for predictions that pan out. We thought the Titanic was unsinkable, that the Hindenberg would have a smooth flight every time, and that the Cubs would find a way to lose in 2016. And generally, to quote the late Pete Axthelm, we follow horses that follow other horses.

However, having picked this year's Kentucky Derby 1-2 finish of Justify and Good Magic on the button – without having a ticket for same, of course, there being no mutuel window near the home couch – there is a certain bit of confidence blooming.

So let's put it this way. Nick Hardy is going to be a winner as a pro. Not just win money, but win. Trophies. Titles you've heard of.

And likely, a bunch of them.

He has plenty of game, but then, thousands of players out there have plenty of game.

What Hardy also has is a smart head on his shoulders, smart enough to understand golf really is flog spelled backwards, that this royal and ancient game is just that: a game.

This notion that the kid from Northbrook who has won a pair of Big Ten titles, the most recent one outright a fortnight ago, became more clear on Monday, when he and Ohio State alum Tim "Tee-K" Kelly, already a winner on the Latino-america circuit the PGA Tour runs, dropped by the Ivanhoe Club to promote the upcoming Rust-Oleum Championship on the web.com Tour.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

HARDY TALKER

Nick Hardy was a popular interview at the Rust-Oleum Championship's media day at Ivanhoe Club.

Both were well-spoken, and Kelly's tale of playing through Brazil, Peru and Uruguay – not exactly the Florida Swing – was captivating.

Hardy will make his professional debut at Ivanhoe, following the finish of his college career at Illinois, and is taking the opportunity so seriously he's skipping trying to qualify for the U.S. Open, a dance party he's taken part in twice. That's because sectional qualifying is Monday of Rust-Oleum week, would be nowhere near here, and wipe out a practice round on the course.

Hardy played in last year's John Deere Classic and finished in a tie for 55th. He would have made $12,000 or so had he been a pro. Instead, he got a pat on the back from tournament director Clair Peterson.

What Hardy would love is another sponsor's exemption into the Deere, as he received last year and as he's getting into the Rust-Oleum.

If Hardy finishes in the top 25 at Ivanhoe, he's eligible to play in the next web.com tournament. If he did it again, he could play the following week, and so on. The meritocracy of professional golf means success returns the opportunity for more success.

We think Nick Hardy will take that path.

ILLINOIS GOLFER COVER STORY

BIG TEN MEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Illini romp to fourth straight title

BY TIM CRONIN

The successes begin to run together.

Four Big Ten championships in a row. Nine in the last ten years.

If a football or basketball coach was accomplishing that in Champaign-Urbana, a bronze statue would have been ordered, and perhaps already unveiled. The season-ticket waiting list would approach that of Augusta National's for the Masters.

But this is golf we're talking about, and what Mike Small will get is a pat on the back and perhaps a contract extension.

What his Illinois teams have accomplished is absolutely astounding. Ohio State was similarly successful from the mid-1970s through late 1980s, but the Buckeyes had a long record of success. Remember that Nicklaus kid from the early 1960s? And Weiskopf, who followed him?

Illinois didn't have quite the foundation beyond 1988, that magical one year when Steve Stricker was the stud of the team and Small was new, and the combination added up to the school's first conference crown in golf since 1941.

Look at the Fighting Illini now, a program flush with a top practice facility amidst the agricultural wing of the school in Champaign, a top course to play on at Stone Creek in Urbana, and more than passing recognition on the campus that covers both communities. The old one-liner of the team not rebuilding but reloading applies.

Nick Hardy, the Northbrook lad who captured his second individual conference title in three years, this one outright rather than shared, is graduating in a few weeks. So is Dylan Meyer, the gritty kid from Evansville, Ind., who won last year's conference title and took eighth individually this time around.

But the fall brings the arrival of Morton native Tommy Kuhl to the campus, and all he did last year was break every IHSA scoring record in capturing the 2A individual title.

The upcoming NCAA tournament, then, isn't so much a finale as one more test as to the relative strength of this powerhouse against the rest of the country.

Can Hardy, Meyer and Co. finally win an NCAA championship? Can the Illini get to the final match, something that didn't happen last year, when thousands followed them at Rich Harvest Farms?

First, of course, there's the need to qualify, and Illinois is seeded second in the NCAA regional on the Scarlet and Gray Courses at Ohio State.

In other words, work to be done for a team that so often gets the job done.

"If we'd pinch ourselves we might stop winning," Hardy said. "Obviously, it's been a special decade for the program, for what Coach has built, but he makes us want to keep going. He's never satisfied, and that just trickles on down to the players."

Hardy grabbed the individual conference title with birdies on two of his last three holes at Baltimore Country Club's famed Five Farms layout, and scored a two-stroke victory over Cole Miller of Penn State with a total of 6-under-par 274. That pleased Small to no end.

"He struggled on the greens all week but he didn't let that get to him," Small said of Hardy. Small called taking the title "a good exclamation mark."

Hardy credited Small with turning him into a player.

"Everything, honestly," Hardy said when asked the most important thing he'd learned from Small. "Coach Small, he's been around the world and back competing in this game, and coaching too. He has so much experience, and honestly does know it all. He's taught me pretty much everything I need to know. I've grown in every area because of him."

Winning this year's Big Ten title was not routine for Illinois, even though the margin over runner-up Ohio State was 14 strokes. Hardy's final-round of 3-under-par 67, the best round of the day, went a long way toward securing it. His 54-hole total of 6-under 204 was seven strokes better than the 211 of Will Grimmer, the best of the Buckeyes. And Hardy was the only player to punch out three rounds in the 60s (69-68-67). Miller had opened 68-65, and led through 36 holes, but Miller's 3-over 73 on the final day did him no favors, especially with Hardy charging.

Illinois' total was 4-under 836, with the Buckeyes second (11-over 851) and Iowa third (19-over 859), shading Penn State by a stroke.

Northwestern finished fifth at 23-over 863.

For Hardy and Meyer, this is the end of the line as teammates. They've been in the field in individual tournaments before — Hardy made the cut in last year's John Deere Classic while Meyer went home after Friday afternoon — but soon it will be different, with cash to play for.

"I think I've accomplished a lot of my goals," Hardy said. "I've got one left, and that's to win a team national championship. Definitely have that on my mind since."

"We've got a good thing going. We're playing our best golf at the right time, and definitely looking forward to regionals."

It's not just Hardy and Meyer, of course. Bryan Baumgarten and Michael Feagles tied for fifth overall at 2-over 212 in Baltimore, with Feagles' second-round 6-under 64 the best circuit of the championship, and Giovanni Tadiotto tied for 22nd at 7-over 217. Meyer, who opened with a pair of 69s, tied for eighth at 3-over 213 in a very fast field.

As for himself, Hardy said the biggest thing he'd learned about himself at Illinois was "learning how to be a leader on the team. Learning how to lead a younger group of guys. This past year, it's helped me to be a better golfer, I think. It's taught me a lot about myself as well."

"It (pro golf) is a big-boy job, but I think I'm ready for it. I think the past four years has prepared me really well for everything on the next level. It's been my dream since I was a little kid to be a professional golfer. I think I've prepared myself well through coach Small and (assistant) Zach Barlow and everyone down there."

Northwestern, seeded sixth at Ohio State, is led by Dylan Wu, who took third in Baltimore by finishing at even-par 210. The Wildcats were chalk there, the five-man team finishing in their seed positions. Ryan Lunsden, the No. 2 Cat, tied for 10th at 4-over 214.

Usually, a team going to a regional site hasn't played there unless it's the home team. But Illinois was at Ohio State a few weeks ago and played on the Donald Ross layouts.

"Honestly, it's big that we played there," Meyer said. "It's another (bit of) magic by Coach, drawing up that schedule and getting us to play three weeks prior to the tournament. We played four rounds there, so we really know the course well."

NCAA WOMEN'S MADISON REGIONAL

Wildcats advance, Illini ousted

Riley's scorching 66 propels Northwestern ahead of Illinois for final spot

BY TIM CRONIN

While Duke was running away with the individual title, and Wisconsin's Gabby Curtis had scrambled for one last par for a 4-under-par 68 and a total of 7-under 209, grabbing an individual berth in the NCAA Championship, there was a drama playing itself out in the middle of the pack at the NCAA Women's Regional at University Ridge Golf Club in Verona, Wis.

Three teams, all Big Ten foes, were scrapping for the last two transfer spots in the team competition. Only the top six teams of the 18 on hand would move on, and Illinois, Northwestern and Ohio State were in a battle to the end to see who would be left out.

To add to the drama, the final round was played with a shotgun start to dodge projected thunderstorms. So everyone would finish at the same time, then wait for the final scoring to be posted.

With about an hour to play, the Fighting Illini, Wildcats and Buckeyes were all 1-over, tied for fifth, with fourth place Arizona State three strokes ahead but seemingly out of reach.

Instead, the Buckeyes rallied to finish a 1-under and tied Arizona State, which dropped a shot, in fourth place at 863. That left Illinois and Northwestern for the final spot in the finals.

It would go to Northwestern, and because of Brooke Riley's astonishing 6-under-par 66.

Nominally the No. 4 player on the Wildcats, she sliced eight birdies on her card, offset by only a pair of bogeys, and that score, three strokes better than the 3-under 69 turned in by Illinois' Grace Park, accounted for the two-stroke difference between the two teams, plus one more to spare.

Riley, a sophomore from Manteca, Calif., who won the California Women's Amateur last year, might have had a 65 but for a closing bogey, but no matter. When she signed her card, she signed Northwestern's travel plan to Karsten Creek Golf Course, site of this year's championship.

She was aided by Stephanie Lau (73), and Hannah Kim and Sarah Cho (74s), and made up for the late stumble of Janet Mao, whose unaccustomed 79 included two bogeys and a triple-bogey in the last four holes.

Illinois had Park closing fast — her 69 featured three birdies in the last 10 holes — and received a pair of 73s, from Dana Gattone and Tristyn Nowlin, as well as a 2-over 74 from Bing Singhsumalee. But Riley's 66 carried the day, and the Wildcats, which finished second to Arizona State last year at Rich Harvest Farms, move on as a team. Park missed advancing as an individual by two strokes.

Nicole Schachner of Oregon State won the individual title, scoring 10-under 206 (68-66-72).

30TH WILL COUNTY AMATEUR

Albano grabs the brown jacket

Birdies on 16, 17 spell difference as Tussey falters

BY TIM CRONIN

Tony Albano was four strokes behind leader Trey Tussey in the 30th Will County Amateur with five holes to play. No chance, right?

Wrong. At Balmoral Woods, Yogi Berra's axiom is always in play. It's never over until it's over. And when it was over, it was Albano who was on top, triumphing over Tussey by a stroke in the annual teeoff to Illinois' amateur golf season with a total of 3-under-par 141 to Tussey's 142.

Albano, a Park Ridge resident who graduated from Illinois Wesleyan in 2015, rallied while Tussey tumbled on Balmoral's testing final quintet of holes on Sun., April 22.

After 13 holes, Tussey was at 7-under, having gone out in 4-under 34 and, after a bogey on No. 10, adding birdies on the 11th and 12th holes. Albano was 3-under, and only 1-under for the day after a bogey on the par-3 13th.

But Albano would play the more steady golf down the stretch, beginning with a par 4 on the 300-yard 14th. Tussey, from downstate Metamora and in his sophomore year at Illinois State, bogeyed that hole, but still held a three-stroke lead.

Not for long. Both bogeyed the 15th, but the advantage fell to one stroke after Tussey bogeyed

Brian Snell / Balmoral Woods

the par-3 16th and Albano rolled in a birdie putt for a deuce. And after another bogey-birdie combination on the par-4 17th, Albano was in the lead. He remained there after both registered bogeys in the par-4 18th.

Bob Jacobs had started the day as the leader after an opening 3-under 69, but blew up with a closing 79. Three others opened with 70s and shared second with Albano and Tussey on Sunday morning, but Glenn Prysbylski added a 75 for 1-over 145, while Eric Crost and John Erhgott posted 76s for 2-over 146.

Albano's been a threat to win for a while. Last year, he tied for ninth at Balmoral Woods, and advanced to U.S. Open sectional qualifying with a stylish round at Midlane, but didn't make it to Erin Hills.

Tussey played because he wasn't on the Redbirds' traveling squad for the Missouri Valley Conference tournament in Cape Girardeau, Mo., which began the following day.

Balmoral Woods, under new ownership as of last year, is adding a Women's Will County Amateur this year. Played in the same 36-hole format as the men's tournament, it's slated for July 31-Aug. 1, with junior (14-18) and legends (45 and up) divisions as well as the open bracket. The entry fee is $100. Sportsman's renovation will be all-encompassing

Plan calls for revamped 27 holes, new clubhouse and more

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES

Six teams of architects – one for the golf course and one for the clubhouse – are competing on May 9-10 to win the contract to completely renovate Sportsman's Country Club in Northbrook.

The Northbrook Park District, which has owned Sportsman's since 1978, came up with the team concept with the idea that everything would be done in once, and the plans for the building and the course would be in harmony.

There's a lot in play at Sportsman's, with a driving range next to Dundee Rd., a miniature golf course, an old bowling alley which is now the maintenance center, and the clubhouse, along with 27 holes of Al Espinosa and Ed Dearie's original 36.

On the website SpearonGolf.com, Rory Spears reported the six golf course architects are:

- Mike Benkusky, renovator of St. Charles and Arlington Lakes;
- Dave Esler, redesigner of Mount Prospect;
- Ray Hearn, designer of Mistwood;
- Bob Lohmann, redesigner of Schaumburg;
- Richard Mandell of Pinehurst, N.C.;
- and Greg Martin, whose Preserve at Oak Meadows work recently won renovation of the year.

The course could be tweaked or completely redesigned. The clubhouse is not expected to add a banquet room, though if the maintenance center is moved, space would be available.

A decision by the park board is expected soon.

CHANGE IN THE AIR Sportsman's, on busy Dundee Rd. in Northbrook, is about to decide between several proposals that could mean moving the range (below) and dropping miniature golf (right).

79TH SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP PREVIEW

Langer won't linger in Benton Harbor

Son's high school graduation comes first, so no defense of title

BY TIM CRONIN

Bernhard Langer, the most consistent player in senior golf, is also one of the most humble.

He knows what's important, and frequently, it isn't him.

That's why he won't be defending the Senior PGA Championship he won last year at Trump National Golf Club in Patomac Falls, Va., when the 79th renewal starts May 24 at Harbor Shores in Benton Harbor, Mich.

His son Jason is graduating from high school that weekend, and, like Phil Mickelson, who skipped the U.S. Open last year to be at his daughter's side when she graduated, Langer will be at home, a proud papa.

"Family always comes first in my life, so I've got to be there to support him, to celebrate him moving on to college," Langer told reporters at the course on April 23. "He will go to the University of Pennsylvania and go to the Wharton School, business school there and also play golf. I wouldn't want to miss that. I'm going to miss competing for this, but hopefully there will be more chances in the future."

There probably will be, for while Langer is 60, he's been a force of nature since joining the 50-plus circuit. Last year's title, while his first Senior PGA, was his 10th senior major, a category

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

GARDEN IN A CITY It's hard to believe that just yards away from the second hole, a multi-lane highway roars by..

he leads in. Including last weekend's Inspirity Invitational, Langer's won 39 times overall since turning 50, to go with 40 European Tour wins, plus a pair of Masters Tournaments and a Heritage Classic on this side of the pond. The most recent 14 of those PGA Champions wins have come in the last three years, after the point when most seniors are settling for the occasional top-20 placing.

There's no reason to think he'll stop there, but his absence this year opens up the tournament for just about anyone. And given the history at Harbor Shores, a Jack Nicklaus design that replaced a manufacturing area that became a brownfield, anyone means anyone.

The first Senior PGA on the course, in 2012, proved that. Roger Chapman, the very definition of an unknown senior golfer, led all the way to win not only his first senior major, but his first senior tournament. Then he backed it up by winning the U.S. Senior Open. He's not won since.

In 2014, the quite more recognizable Colin Montgomerie triumphed, while two years ago, Rocco Mediate, best known for losing to the ailing Tiger Woods in the 2008 U.S. Open at Torrey Pines, took home the title.

Langer, for one, professed his pain at missing this chance, as he likes the quiz Jack concocted.

"My first round I played here years ago, practice round, I immediately said to my caddie, this is a special place," Langer said. "I thought it was tee to green one of the best courses I've ever played. I did feel that some of the greens were a little bit severe, but there's a reason for all that, and I can see why Jack did what he did now."

"Good shots – you get a benefit from it and you can make a bunch of birdies, and if you don't hit it in the right quadrant or the right place, you get punished. You might make a three-putt, you might even make a four-putt. That can happen out here. It's a very demanding golf course. Fairly wide off the tee at times, but very punishing in other areas, and I really love it, and I've enjoyed competing out here. I know I haven't won, but hopefully I get a chance in the near future."

The idea of Harbor Shores was to use the golf course as the centerpiece of a planned residential and shopping community, and after a long wait, that's beginning to pan out.

"Recently, Harbor Shores broke ground on Harbor Village, the newest development," said Deb Phillips, the director of global partnerships for Whirlpool's KitchenAid unit. "It's the largest, and it's going to connect. It's located just east of the inn along the river and the marina, and there's going to be a pedestrian bridge from Harbor Village, St.Joe, to Benton Harbor Main Street, so that's also an opportunity hopefully for potential new growth as that connects."

"The North Pier Brewery, it's between holes 13 and 14, and yes, it is a brewery on a golf course, which is awesome, but they opened in 2016, the week of the championship was their opening, and they have been expanding ever since, and now they're selling beer statewide, so that's another great example of the growth."

"In 2017 alone, there were eight new business expansions and two new companies in the area. It just keeps getting better."

Tickets are $25, with youths 17 and under admitted free. One person each day will win $5,000 in appliances from KitchenAid, which has upgraded from presenting to title sponsor.

At the end of the cart path: Key West

Wherein our man on the go finds the last spot on the map is a pleasant one

REPORTING FROM KEY WEST, FLORIDA

For some vacations you might want to choose a golf destination. For others golf need be no more than an amenity. You can have easy access to the game, but take advantage of other attractions as well.

Key West Golf Club is one of the latter. Its first claim to fame is that it's the southernmost course in the continental United States. There are no other golf courses in Key West, which is just 90 miles from Cuba, and there are no other championship-style layouts within 100 miles.

Vacationers flock to Key West for its beautiful sunsets; the shops, bars and restaurants along Duval Street and the Ernest Hemingway Home and Museum more than for the city's only golf course. Still, Key West Golf Club has its fan base as well. It also has rich Chicago connections.

Construction of the course began in 1923 with the Chicago firm of Langford & Moreau in charge. William Langford was a graduate of both Yale and Columbia who designed over 200 courses prior to his death at age 90 in 1977.

Among his credits for original or revised courses are a flock of Illinois private layouts – Barrington Hills, Bloomington, Bryn Mawr, Butterfield, Glen Oak, La Grange, Park Ridge, Ruth Lake and Skokie. He also designed the Chicago Park District's nine-holer at Marquette Park. Partner

ANIMAL HOUSE Iguana, fearsome looking but harmless, and naturally decorated ducks are all part of the scene at Key West Golf Club, and the island generally.

Theodore Moreau was his construction foreman.

Key West's owners since 1994 have been Bill and Gwen Smith. Bill is a Chicago real estate attorney. They also own two Illinois courses – Deer Creek in University Park and The Rail in Springfield – and were long-time owners of Antioch Golf Club. In addition, Doug Carter, who grew up in the Chicago suburb of Mount Prospect, is Key West's general manager and director of golf.

Those connections all played a big part in keeping golf going during some tough times. The course has shown amazing staying power, reflected in it being one of 50 layouts on the Florida Historic Golf Trail. Every Trail course was established between 1897 and 1949 and is still playable today.

Just getting a course in Key West was difficult. The city is an island, just two miles wide and six miles long. Find available space wasn't easy, but the local Chamber of Commerce was able to do it in 1923 and came up with $150,000 in its budget for a golf course at the entrance to the island.

Langford's design was innovative at the time.

With 200 acres of very flat terrain available, his layout featured 10 doglegs, heavy bunkering and an island green when it opened in 1924. A hurricane did severe damage to the facility two years later, reducing it to nine holes, and another in 1935 put the course's future in serious jeopardy. A group of local players banded together in the 1950s to restore the facility as an 18-hole course and Rees Jones, the famous course architect, tackled the project in 1983 with co-designer Keith Evans. They built a new course on the property. The Smiths took it over and rebuilt all the greens in 2006 and 2007.

The present layout has an eye-catching signature feature – the infamous Mangrove Hole. It's No. 8 on the scorecard, a par-3 that plays from 129 to 185 yards with thick mangrove terrain creating a forced carry from the tee box to the green.

Otherwise, the course is on the short side because of its land constraints. It plays at 6,531 yards from the tips and is a par-70. There's plenty to look at as you work your way around it, as the wildlife and foliage aren't quite like any of the many Florida courses we've visited over the years.

For us this adventure started with an iguana slithering across the No. 1 tee box. That struck us as highly unusual – we hadn't seen any on our many visits to other Florida courses – but it wasn't. Those interesting-looking, apparently harmless creatures were in evidence on most holes.

The unique-looking ducks were even more golfer-friendly. They would come right up to your cart looking for food. The pastel-colored coastal homes by the course also enhanced the ambience.

Irma, the latest major hurricane to hit Florida, did damage to most every course in the state last September and Key West was one of the harder hit communities. Key West Golf Club, though, suffered only minimal damage. We found a course that – at the end of the tourist season – was still in quite decent shape.

A little pricey, perhaps, but Key West Golf Club is a friendly place with a user-friendly course blending in nicely with the unique community in which it's located.

AROUND ILLINOIS

Elizabeth Szokol claims first pro title

Winnetka product triumphs on Symetra Tour

BY TIM CRONIN

Atlanta National Golf Club isn't to be confused with Augusta National. There wasn't a green jacket for the winner.

But don't tell any of that to Elizabeth Szokol, who grew up in Winnetka, starred at New Trier High School, spent two years at Northwestern, then finished her college career at Virginia and took her first steps in professional golf last year.

They were promising, with six top-10 finishes, including a tie for second at the Four Winds Invitational at Blackthorn Golf Club in South Bend, Ind.

Sunday, May 6, that promise paid off with a victory on the Symetra Tour. On a day when most of the rest of the field, including the overnight leaders, went backwards, Szokol stepped up, firing a 4-under-par 68 at Atlanta National in Milton, Ga., to win the inaugural IOA Invitational.

Her total of 4-under 212 earned her a one-stroke victory over Pajaree Anannarukarn of Thailand, whose 2-under 70 placed her at 213.

Victory No. 1 came in Szokol's 22nd start on the LPGA's stepping-stone circuit.

"Very excited about it, definitely a big confidence booster," said Szokol to Symetratour.com.

Elizabeth Szokol

ALL BY HERSELFIE Elizabeth Szokol crashed into the winner's circle with a final round 4-under-par 68.

"Playing out here all year last year, I got more confidence so I was just really waiting for that win. It means a lot to be able to get the win in just my second event this year."

Szokol had a tie for third and a tie for fifth in two of her last three starts in 2017, but had missed the cut in her last start of last year and first start of the year, the IOA Championship. That prompted wholesale equipment changes.

"I actually switched my irons, so kind of have more control around the greens with my new irons," Szokol said. "Kept working hard on my swing, putting and short game. Came out here just so excited to keep playing after the three weeks off."

She had opened 71-73 and was tied for 15th after 36 holes, five strokes in arrears of leader Lydia Hall of Bridgend, Wales. But the last threesome of the day, which included Hall, Karen Chung (Livingston, N.J.) and Regina Plasencia (Guadalajara, Mexico), combined to score 19-over-par on a day that saw the wind blow more and more.

That may have rattled others, but not Szokol.

"Especially when I got out of the car and it was pretty windy at the course, I knew staying patient at the start and maybe making a couple birdies I'd have a chance," Szokol said. "Definitely some thought of a chance. I wanted to go out there, post a good score and see what happened."

"It was windy and I love playing in the wind. I stayed steady in the beginning and kind of patient with the wind. Made a few birdies early, so definitely a solid day."

The bogey-free 68, the day's best score – only six other under-par scores were recorded, and only five players finished under par – brought her to the front. Szokol was tied with Chung when she signed her scorecard.

Then Chung bogeyed the 14th and Szokol was ahead for good.

Meanwhile, the leaders skidded. Hall ended up with a 77 for even-par 216 and a tie for sixth.

"All day was pretty tough, the wind picked up so it was a little rough," said Chung, who shot 2-over 74 in the final round, including 3-over on the back nine, and finished joint third. "We definitely couldn't vibe off each other today out there and towards the back nine, I kind of fell apart, too. This was still my best finish of the year, so going to take it as a positive."

Szokol had won the 2012 Illinois Women's Amateur, and won one college tournament at Virginia, but capturing a pro tournament so quickly puts her career, and expectations, on a higher plane. And the $22,500 won't hurt either.

"My putting has been awesome. I think I made pretty much everything from within 10 feet," Szokol said. "My short game really helped me out today and I am driving it well. I am excited."

There's much to be excited about. This moved her to the top of the money list in the young campaign, boosting her potential to get to the LPGA next season. The top 10 at year's end advance.

It's the Forsyth Classic now

When Elizabeth Szokol and her fellow Symetra tourists arrive at Hickory Point Golf Course in downstate Forsyth in June, they'll find the longest-running tournament on the circuit has the new name.

And Decatur isn't part of it.

City officials haven't guaranteed the traditional $20,000 payment into the purse, so tournament director Cindy Deadrick Wolfer renamed it the Forsyth Classic presented by the Decatur Park District, after the town that has supported it for the 34 years it's been played and the park district that hosts it, the Decatur Herald & Review reported April 25. At one point, the Decatur-Forstyh Classic had been designated the major championship on the LPGA Futures Tour.

Decatur and Forsyth had backed the tournament because it brought in money from out of town, not only from players staying in town, but from gallery support. Now it appears Forsyth will go it alone in the municipality department.

The purse is slated at $130,000.

Illinois Wesleyan takes CCIW title

The Fighting Illini don't have the only dominant college golf team in the state. Illinois Wesleyan, the pride of Bloomington, punches about its weight in NCAA Division III.

The latest example came over the weekend, when senior Conner O'Neil earned co-medalist honors in leading Illinois Wesleyan's men's team to its seventh straight College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin title Saturday, May 5 at Joliet Country Club.

O'Neil scored 5-over-par 77 to finish at 1-over 289, tied with Carthage's Matt Meneghetti (closing 69).

Wesleyan led by 16 strokes entering the final round and won by two. The Titan shot 303 for 1,173 to Carthage's 1,175. Ben Johnson was fourth (76-293) for Wesleyan, Rob Wuethrich fifth (76-296).

The conference title advances the Titans into the NCAA Division III championships, May 15-18 at the Grandover Resort in Greensboro, N.C. It will be Wesleyan's 12th straight appearance in the NCAA championship. The Titans' best finish is a runner-up placing in 2011.
