Not too late for DCP play

The annual Drive, Chip & Putt competition is a Sunday morning ritual now, taking place at Augusta National the Sunday before the Masters.

Qualifying for it is a multi-stage endeavor, and takes place the summer before. In the Chicago area, there are several first-stage sites, including at Harbor-side International on the city's south side on June 22.

Registration for that is still open. For more information, go to www.drivechipandputt.com.

LIFE-SAVER: That's the better title now for Peter Schmidt, whose business card reads Golf Course Manager, Medinah Country Club. Schmidt recently used CPR and an AED device to help save the life of a member of Medinah's grounds crew. The Bloomingtondale Fire Department gave him an award, but the real award is that his co-worker is still with us. Kudos!

JOYRIDE? Mopery isn't a criminal offense, but it describes what a runaway driver did at Jackson Park Golf Course on May 21. Police arrested Scott Chapman, a 37-year-old Chicagoan who lives nearby, after he drove his car over several greens and fairways of the south side municipal course, plus drove through a net of a soccer field.

"He was just going for the flags, going for this, going for that," Brian Pino, who recorded the escapade on his phone camera, told WBBM-TV. "I think he hit about six or seven flags."

The incident went on for about 20 minutes until Chicago police cornered Chapman, who drove around with music blaring from his car, on a green.

Misdemeanor charges of assault and criminal damage to property were made. The Chicago Park District estimated about $10,000 in damage.

Quipped Pino, "I don't know if he shot a bad score the night before or what."

Brother, we didn't see this coming

Phil Mickelson's victory in the PGA Championship at Kiawah Island was not only a triumph of a golden oldie, but a battle to beat back the odds inherent in sports that always favor the young, to the swift.

This has been going on a lot lately. Tom Brady is 43, well beyond the usual shelf life of a quarterback, yet led the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to capture his seventh Super Bowl a year after the New England Patriots let him go. The other day, Helio Castroneves, 46, won his fourth Indianapolis 500 for Meyer Shank Racing a year after Team Penske let him go.

Quarterbacks need a protective offensive line and sure-handed receivers. Race drivers need capable cars and nimble pit crews. Golfers? They need the proper equipment and motivation.

For Mickelson, Callaway takes care of the former. The latter comes from Mickelson's fertile mind – he may be more positive than Arnold Palmer, if that's possible – and his caddie. For years, it was Jim "Bones" Mackay, who was always there with the right word and the right club. More recently, including at Kiawah, it has been his brother Tim, who coached at San Diego and Arizona State before Phil beckoned him to carry his bag.

As sibling partnerships go, this one has been a rousing success. There have been plenty of missed cuts on the regular tour in the last year, but Mickelson showed some spark in recent months, winning twice on the 50-plus circuit.

Tim Mickelson via Twitter

OH, BROTHER! Tim and Phil Mickelson with the winner's spoils at Kiawah Island.

For that, Mickelson was expected to be one of the favorites in the PGA. The Senior PGA, that is.

Except he never entered it. He entered the PGA Championship instead, as a past champion. Then he goes out and wins it.

Huh? How did Mickelson figure out the wind, the lines, the approaches and the greens better than anyone else?

Maybe it's because he's never been a bomber. That method works sometimes, as Bryson DeChambeau and Brooks Koepka will tell you.

A thinker can always win. Mickelson has always been a thinker. This became evident back in his amateur days. He played in the 1991 Western Amateur at Point O' Woods, survived being paired with Michael Jordan in the first two rounds of stroke play qualifying, and advanced to the championship match.

The 10th hole at the peerless Point is a dogleg left. Bang a tee shot to the landing area, and you're confronted with a tilted green. On this occasion, the cup was cut toward the back. There's a drop of about five feet off the back of the green. A severely-spun second shot could come off the front of the green. A routine shot with little spin set to land pin-high could bounce over and create a treacherous third.

Mickelson played neither of those shots. He hit a precise knockdown shot for a routine par en route to beating Justin Leonard.

Like Bones before him, Tim Mickelson knows what buttons to pucker with someone who is both fiercely competitive and extremely sure of himself. That's a trait most great athletes have, but of all sports, only in golf is someone with you on the playing field telling you you shouldn't do something.

Phil Mickelson is smart enough to listen. That's why he's only had two caddies in a couple decades, and why he's a winner again.

BILL ABRAMS · 1966-2021

A sudden void in the fraternity

BY TIM CRONIN

Bill Abrams was always on the go, whether mentoring a student at Balmoral Woods in Crete, doing the same for someone at his winter outpost in Florida, or seeking to make golf a more inclusive game.

That's why his death on May 10 was such a shock to members of Chicago's golf community, from his professional peers to his many students. It always seemed that if he wasn't giving a lesson at Balmoral Woods, he was about to.

The cause of death is still undetermined, but he was found next to his car in a parking lot the morning of the 10th and could not be revived.

"Bill will thoroughly be missed by all of us at Balmoral Woods and everywhere," the course's ownership said on its website. "We appreciate everything he gave to the game of golf and for all the lives he touched."

Abrams, 55, was an occasional competitor in Illinois PGA tournaments, winning the Pro-Pro Central Illinois Chapter tournament in 2012 with Scott Brownfield of the Country Club of Peoria, and picking up top-10 solo finishes as recently as last summer. But his real love was on the lesson tee, where his fundamentals-focused instructional method was designed to get results quickly.

"My coaching provides a results-based, common sense, long-term solution to even the most nagging issues," Abrams stated on his website.

Bill Abrams

"We will discover your ability to play better in an accelerated manner."

That method earned him the Illinois PGA's Golf Professional of the Year award in 2015.

"It was a tremendous honor," Abrams said at the time. "I was very humbled to be recognized by my peers, not just for the work I did last year, but for my whole career."

Abrams was also honored as a top-50 teacher of youth by the U.S. Kids Golf operation on multiple occasions.

He built a solid clientele for his Golf Solutions Academy, which headquartered at Balmoral Woods in the summer and in the West Palm Beach, Fla., area in the winter. In recent years, he was spending increasing time in Florida, where the golf season never ends.

"His positivity and abstract approach to teaching has helped to shape me into the golfer I am today and reach my goals of playing Division 1 golf," said new North Central college head coach Frankie Saban, who starred on the girls team at Sandburg High School and then at Bradley University. "He believed in me and made the game simple again; something every golfer could use."

Former Chicago Bears player Desmond Clark went to Abrams for help and found his game turned around.

"After he studied my swing for 20-30 minutes, he was able to correct some fundamental things which then allowed me to work on more detailed parts of my game," Clark explained.

Abrams put the lie to the canard that tall players couldn't play well. At 6-foot-5, the former basketball star – in Towanda, Pa. – took up golf at 12 and never left the game. Even in college, he found himself giving tips to his Lycoming College teammates, he told the Daily Southtown in 2015.

Before he decamped at Balmoral Woods, he was the head pro at nearby Lincolnshire Country Club and Lincoln Oaks for four years.

As Brady Serafin, a youngster from Beecher, said in a testimonial on Abrams' website, "Bill is the best friend a golfer could have."

Memorial services are incomplete.

A salute to an artist named Art

I wish I could say that I knew Arthur Hills better than I really did. Our only in-depth meeting came in 1993, when – as a Chicago golf columnist – I was invited to the grand opening of one of his designs, called The Thoroughbred in Rothbury, Mich. I do know Hills' work quite well, though.

Last year, at the request of friend and colleague Fred Altwater, I had the honor of introducing the Arthur Hills Golf Trail to not only the readers of the Ohio Golf Journal but golfers nationwide through pieces that ran elsewhere.

In addition to Hills' four Illinois designs I've also played his courses in Michigan and South Carolina. My favorite is the Arthur Hills Course at Michigan's Boyne Highlands Resort, but there were so many good ones. Hills eventually designed over 200 courses and renovated over 150 in a career that began in 1967. He worked as a course designer into his eighties before passing away on May 18 at the age of 91.

While Pete Dye may have received more notoriety, Hills' work will never be taken lightly. In Illinois, he created good ones in Stonewall Orchard, a long-time site of the Illinois PGA Championship; Bolingbrook, the centerpiece of the community of the same name; Ivanhoe, site of the RustOleum on the Korn Ferry Tour; and Chicago Highlands, a private club that hosted the Evans Scholars Invitational last year.

Stonewall, in Grayslake, was Hills' first Illinois course. It opened in 1999. Bob Malpede,

Stonewall Orchard Golf Club

A CHALLENGE Stonewall Orchard in Grayslake, Arthur Hills' first course in the state, packs a punch.

now the director of golf at White Deer Run in Vernon Hills, directed the interview process that brought Hills to the golf-rich Chicago area.

"Art was most cooperative and he wanted to be in Chicago," Malpede recalled. "He came once a month (during construction) and we walked all 18 holes each time – and it was hard keeping up with him. He was very involved with the project, and he was very enjoyable to work with – except on the 18th hole."

The design of No. 18, a downhill par 5, was controversial then and still is with some. Mal-pede suggested a second look, Hills wanted it the way he designed it and that was that.

Creating Stonewall was basically a three-year project and Malpede kept in touch with Hills after that, even attending his 80th birthday party in Atlanta.

Hills, of course, did much more work in Ohio and Michigan than he did anywhere else. He was always based in the Toledo area, with partners Steve Forrest and Shawn Smith. Hills • Forrest • Smith became one of the country's most prominent golf architecture firms. Forrest worked with Hills for 42 years. Smith started with the group in 2010.

Nine of Hill's designs are in Ohio and 17 are in Michigan. The latter includes 27-hole eye-catcher Bay Harbor.

"I had the great privilege of learning all aspects of golf course architecture from a distinguished professional practitioner and humble gentleman," Forrest told the Toledo Blade after learning of Hills' passing. "Arthur became a father-like figure to me – a mentor, instructor, exhorter and admonisher always trying to improve his own skills."

"Art was one of a handful of Toledoans who spread the city's golf brand far and wide over the past century," said Dave Hackenberg of the Blade. "He started with the Yellow Pages and modest ambitions ... then made his mark with masterful, dramatic course designs around the nation and around the world."

I was assigned to be Hills' cart partner in that long-ago grand opening of The Thoroughbred. It was a well-attended outing, a most enjoyable event that had us starting off the No. 1 tee on a typical Hills' course. I generally found Hills' courses marked by one hole that was either controversial, goofy, unusually tricky, memorable – you pick the adjective. The Thoroughbred definitely had one, though I can't remember which one it was after 28 years.

While Hills earned degrees from Michigan, Michigan State and the University of Toledo, his designs are as far away as Portugal, Croatia, Sweden, Mexico and Norway.

Just two days after Hills' passing my good friend and golf partner Herb Gould lined up a couples' round at Heritage Harbour, in Bradenton, Fla. Herb didn't know of Hills' death at the

Like many golf course architects, Arthur Hills had to wedge his way into the business.

"He started the business by placing an ad in the Toledo, Ohio, Yellow Pages under 'Golf Course Architect' while operating a landscape contracting business," Steve Forrest, Hills' business partner, said on May 18, hours after Hills, 91, died. The cause was not announced.

Landscapes soon yielded to golf design on a fulltime basis. Hills would create over 200 courses and renovate some 150 more in a career spanning nearly 60 years.

Hills' courses were often highly regarded layouts, including Bonita Bay in Naples, Fla.

Pete Dye named him "the mayor of Naples" for all the courses Hills created in that area/

A past president of the American Society of Golf Course Architects (1992-93), he was elected to membership in both the Michigan and Ohio golf halls of fame. He was the rare graduate of both Michigan (landscape architecture) and Michigan State (science).

What today is Hills • Forest • Smith Golf Course Architects was founded in the 1960s, and remains based in Toledo, Ohio.

"I had the great privilege of learning all aspects of golf course architecture from a distinguished professional practitioner and humble gentleman over 42 years," Forrest said. "Arthur became a fatherlike figure to me who was a mentor, an instructor, exhorter and admonisher while always trying to improve his own skills and increase his personal knowledge every day."

The ASGCA noted Hills was an environmental pioneer, designing the first Audubon Signature Sanctuary courses in the U.S., Mexico and Europe.

time, and neither did the personnel in the pro shop. We all reminisced about Hills' courses and then the staff stunned me by bringing out a beautiful book, "The Works of Art." It's a terrific collection of most all the Hills designs.

"You need to have this," the staffer told me – and he was right. I wasn't aware such a book on Hills existed, and it's a real keeper.

As for Heritage Harbour, it wasn't one of Hills' most notable creations – a residential layout that had extremely wide fairways but most challenging shots into the greens. Playing it on an extremely windy day made those shots especially challenging, but it was still a lot of fun.

The one controversial hole concept seemed to me (and a few others, I might add) to be a Hills trademark. I'm not sure he felt that way, however. What we should remember, first and foremost, is that all of his courses brought so much joy to golfers of all abilities. They enriched the lives of so many people just because they were so much fun.

ILLINOIS GOLFER COVER STORY

NCAA CHAMPIONSHIP

Now for the kill

Illini reach Elite Eight match play; Feagles fourth individually

BY TIM CRONIN

It's a customary occurrence now. Illinois' men's golf team has advanced to match play in the NCAA Championship.

The Fighting Illini, pursuing their first national title in golf, made the field of eight for the seventh time, and first time since 2017, by placing fifth in the team stroke-play competition May 28-31 on Grayhawk Golf Club's Raptor course in Scottsdale, Ariz. They face the fourth-seeded Oklahoma Sooners in the quarterfinals on the morning of Tue., June 1.

Illinois is the only northern team to make the Elite Eight. The other matchups: Arizona State vs. North Carolina, Oklahoma State vs. Vanderbilt, and Pepperdine vs. Florida State.

In other words, Mike Small's team has done it again. Already, they've overperformed. Seeded eighth overall, their fifth-place finish in stroke play, 17 strokes behind leader Arizona State, earned them the matchup with the Sooners while Clemson, Texas and Wake Forest, seeded fourth, fifth and seventh, respectively, didn't make match play.

The individual matchups in the Oklahoma-II-

FOURTH PLACE

Illinois graduate student Michael Feagles, pictured here at the Big Ten championship, took fourth in the NCAA individual competition.

Illinois match, with the Sooners listed first, with their stroke-play scores:

- Jonathan Brightwell (278) vs. Giovanni Tadiotto (297), 9:10 a.m. Central Time, 10th tee.
- Patrick Welch (alternate) vs. Adrien Dumont de Chassart (287), 9:20 a.m., 10th tee.
- Logan McAllister (283) vs. Jerry Ji (285), 9:30 a.m., 10th tee.
- Quade Cummins (278) vs. Tommy Kuhl (290), 9:40 a.m., 10th tee.
- Ben Lorenz (293) vs. Michael Feagles (276), 9:50 a.m., 10th tee.

Welch's presence in the Oklahoma lineup is the wild-card. He was listed as an alternate entering the NAAs by Sooners coach Ryan Hybl, and now the winner of the 2020 East Lake Cup is in the lineup. After finishing 25th in the Big 12 championship, he was used in only one round of the Sooners' NCAA regional appearance, firing an 80. But Hybl thinks highly of him, and placed him second in the lineup, where he'll face Dumont de Chassart, the co-Big Ten player of the year.

Feagles' 4-under 276 total, keyed by 3-under 67s in the second and third rounds, earned the graduate student a fourth place finish in the individual competition, the best showing for an Illinois player since Thomas Detry tied for third in 2015.

A national championship is the one thing Small's teams, dominant in the Big Ten for over a decade, haven't achieved.

Illinois' best finish in the NCAA Championship is a runner-up placing in 2013, two years after the match-play finals format began. The Illini have fallen in the semifinals three times (2015-17). The 2020 NAAs were canceled because of COVID-19, so this is the first time in three playings the Illini are back in the Elite Eight. They finished 11th in the 2018 championship and tied for 27th in 2019.

The Illini were tied for fifth at Grayhawk after 54 holes, moving up a spot from sixth at the halfway mark.

“We never look down the leaderboard, we always look up the leaderboard,” Small said after Round 3. “Golf is an easier game when you are chasing people than it is if you are protecting. We don't believe in the word protection. We talked about that, obviously, and we're going to come out tomorrow and play golf like we've been playing, and be prepared to handle some adversity.

“Something is going to happen tomorrow to each one of them that's going to rattle their cages. They've got to get through it and figure it out.”

Feagles, a Scottsdale native with a rare home championship, figured it out most of all with his even-par 70. Dumont de Chassart (T-34) and Giovanni Tadiotto (T-69) scored 73 – with Tadiotto playing as an individual, as only the top four scores count in the NCAA's team formula – while Tommy Kuhl had a 74 to tie for 44th and Jerry Ji struggled to a 77, tying for 29th. But the total of 14-over 1,134 kept them in fifth, and 18 strokes to the good for advancing to match play.

“Michael is playing great – he's playing solid; that's probably a better description,” Small said of Feagles. “The first day I could tell he was a little – not nervous – but playing back home in a big tournament. He settled down quickly and he's been on point the whole time so far. He's enjoying it, enjoying the challenge. Some friends and family are out watching him and it's been fun to watch him spend his last national championship at home in front of his family and friends.”

Are the Illini ready? Small thought so earlier this week, and used an expression Ara Parseghian liked to use.

“We always use the expression, ‘the hay is in the barn’ meaning all the works is done,” Small said. “It's been put away, now it's just time to trust it and go out and play and compete. If you're trying to find something (to fix) right now, it's a little late. So we'll just tidy a couple of things up on the greens, and then we'll come out tomorrow (in the fourth round of stroke play) and lay it on the line and compete."

Turk Pettit of Clemson won the individual championship, his final-round even-par 70 locking in a total of 7-under 273 and a one-stroke victory over Bo Jin of Oklahoma State. Jin posted a 5-under 65 in the second round, the best of the competition, but his closing 73, and especially a bogey at the last, dropped him from the lead. Pettit parred his last six holes to hang on.

Ryggs Johnston of Arizona State passed Feagles via a 1-under 69 to snag third place.

Small had called Illinois' first round play "a loose day, but it wasn't a bad day. We kind of salvaged it."

Ji's 70 was the low Illini round in the first round. Feagles' 67 and Ji's 68, with a 70 thrown in by Kuhl, were the second-round features of their 1-under 279 on a day where only five of the 30 teams in the field scored under par.

Off the course, four Illini were selected to the Division I All-Midwest team, as selected by members of the Golf Coaches Association of America. Dumont de Chassart, Feagles, Ji and Tadiotto were honored.

It's the fifth all-region selection for Feagles, who – along with Tadiotto – returned to the Illinois program in 2020-21 following the COVID-19-shortened 2019-20 season. Tadiotto, Dumont de Chassart and Ji all earned a second career all-region selection. This is the 13th consecutive season Illinois has placed at least two golfers on the all-region list.

Feagles is also a five-time All-Big Ten selection, an unprecedented achievement.

70TH ILLINOIS PGA MATCH PLAY Billiter back in a familiar spot

Collects third match play title by rallying to defeat Chaussard

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES
REPORTING FROM WOODSTOCK

Four down after the first seven holes in a single-round match play contest isn't the ideal position to be in.

Unless your name is Jim Billiter, it seems.

That's the fix Billiter found himself in on May 13 in the title match of the 70th Illinois PGA Match Play Championship at Bull Valley Golf Club. Garrett Chaussard, both foe and friend, had won three of the first four holes, then took the seventh hole with a par.

Billiter was up against it, given Chaussard's match-play resume, the 2018 and 2019 titles decorating it, plus a runner-up placing last year – until a flock of birdies landed on his scorecard. He birdied the par-3 eighth, as did Chaussard with a nearly identical approach to no more than five feet, to at least not lose more ground.

Billiter, who hangs his pro shingle at Ivanhoe Club these days, then birdied the ninth via a wedge to eight feet, and trimmed Chaussard's lead to a still-formidable 3 up at the turn.

Little did either know, but the rout was on. Billiter would birdie six of his last 10 holes to race from behind to score a 2-and-1 victory over Chaussard for the title.

Nick Novelli / Illinois PGA

PRACTICED EYE Jim Billiter watches a tee shot sail down the fairway at Bull Valley.

It's his third such crown, to go with triumphs in 2015 and 2017. Only seven other players have won the IPGA Match Play at least thrice. His and Chaussard's mano-a-man pedigree certified that the two guys most likely to be in the title match were there.

Of the birdie barrage, Billiter said it "is not normal for me, but I was making some putts and hitting good shots. I made Garrett press a little bit, which is usually what he does in this event. So, it was good to make him work hard."

Billiter ran down a 30-foot putt on the par-4 12th to cut the margin to two holes. He birdied the 12th, a par-4 set for 290 yards, by hacking a shot out of fescue behind the green and sinking the subsequent putt for another bird. Now he was 1 down. Game on.

Saving par on the 14th when Chaussard bogeyed squared the match. Billiter took the lead on the par-5 15th by dropping his third shot some five feet from the cup for another birdie.

Billiter's two-putt birdie on the par-5 17th finished Chaussard off. Despite losing, he was able to go back to his teaching post at Skokie Country Club $2,500 richer. Billiter pocketed $4,500 for winning.

"I want to congratulate Garrett Chaussard," Billiter said. "Making four finals in a row is incredible. He's a heck of an opponent and a great player. If you make bogey, he going to beat you. I started down four. I figured I needed to make some birdies to win some holes. I didn't start great, and even if I made bogey on the ones I doubled I still would've lost.

"He's an amazing player and I was really lucky to get past him and all the guys I played against."

Not really. You earn it in a six-round match

Nick Novelli / Illinois PGA

LOST OPPORTUNITY Garrett Chaussard was after his third IPGA Match Play title in four years.

play tournament. Billiter did so, starting by scoring 1-over 73 in the qualifying round to gain the No. 5 seed, a stroke better than Chaussard. (Travis Johns of Medinah Country Club was medalist with a 2-under 70.)

"This is always a fun week," Billiter said. "You play one-on-one, and you get to meet new guys and catch up with some of the guys you don't always see. I played against some great guys earlier in the week and I was lucky to sneak by guys like Chris French and David Paeglow."

Billiter knocked off Pagelow in the morning semifinal 2 and 1, finishing with a birdie on the 17th to send the Kishwaukee pro home.

In earlier matches in the 64-man bracket, Billiter beat Nick Murn, 5 and 3; Mike Kinasiwicz, 5 and 3; Andrew Adamsick, 5 and 4, and French, 1 up in the quarterfinals thanks to parring the 18th hole. Until the quarters, Billiter hadn't stepped on the 16th tee.

Chaussard, who extended his string of reaching at least the semifinal to five years, took down Jamie Nieto, 8 and 7, in his Round of 64 match, then topped Kevin Healy, 3 and 2, Steve Gillie, 3 and 2; and Tim Streng in a 19-hole quarterfinal test before scoring a 2 and 1 victory over Johns in his morning semifinal.

Defender Jonathan Duppler, who beat Chaussard in last year's final on his home layout of Elgin Country Club, had a bye into the Round of 32, and didn't get past it, beaten 3 and 2 by Pagelow.

For Billiter, a third match play title and fourth major – he also won the 2015 Illinois PGA Championship, a stroke play tournament – moves him up a level. He joins Bob Harris, Bill Ogden, Bob Ackerman, Jim Sobb, Dick Hart, Dean Lind, Steve Benson, Doug Bauman and Curtis Malm as winners of at least three of these fandangos.

Harris won six straight from 1958-63, Ogden captured five across a 21-year span, while Ackerman and Sobb each won four. Harris, Ogden, Sobb, Hart, Lind and Benson are all Illinois Golf Hall of Famers. It's too early to speak of Billiter in that category, but he's trending in the right direction.

3RD EVANS SCHOLARS INVITATIONAL

Oh, to be Young and a golfer

Two straight on the KFT for New Yorker as Hardy, Flavin fall short

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES
REPORTING FROM GLENVIEW

Cameron Young is not a household name. Yet.

On May 30, he took a big step in that direction by winning the 3rd Evans Scholars Invitational, the Western Golf Association's tournament on the Korn Ferry Tour.

Young, a Wake Forest graduate who hails from New York, won the KFT tourney the week before while everyone was watching Phil Mickelson surprise the world in the PGA Championship.

His five-stroke victory over Adam Svensson at The Glen Club – built on back-to-back 4-under 67s on the weekend – earned him $108,000 and made him the 10th player in the history of the circuit, which started as the Ben Hogan Tour in 1990, to double top victories.

"I feel like my good has always been good enough to win," Young told reporters. "I drive the ball a lot better than I have previously. It's something that's improved dramatically over the last year or two. You can look back and say I missed a bunch of cuts early this year, but it wasn't that different. It's just a little bit here and there and not being as comfortable on the greens, and that really has changed how I feel out here and has dramatically changed my scoring. Just that little bit of confidence in making one or two more a day is adding up a lot."

Young led all the way, tying Nick Hardy on Thursday afternoon with an opening 64 in a howling wind, and taking the solo lead in the second round. His total was 18-under-par 266.

For Hardy, the Northbrook native who could bunk at home for a week, the outcome was less than he hoped for, especially after the opening. That had him excited for the prospects to come, especially in front of a large gallery.

"I've played a lot of golf here," he said of The Glen Club after the opening round. "A couple of Illinois Opens; I grew up five minutes away, so playing it growing up.

"Definitely, there's a certain comfort factor being here for sure, and being in competition. I've played a lot of competitive rounds here.

"I got to see my swing coach, Brett Packee, this week, and I definitely feel more comfortable."

Hardy earned $20,900 in a three-way tie for fifth at 9-under 275. He was joined by George Cunningham and near-neighbor Patrick Flavin of Highwood, who joined Young as the only other player to post four rounds in the 60s (69-69-68-69).

Home cooking also aided Vince India, who tied for 12th at 6-under 278 and earned $11,250, while Illinois native Luke Guthrie was joint 18th at 5-under 279 and collected $7,605. Brad Hopfinger, who like India won an Illinois Open on the course, pocketed $3,630 for scoring 3-under 281 and tying for 33rd.

Defending champion Curtis Thompson tied for 24th with a closing 66 for 4-under 280.

The week was a success for the sponsoring WGA. Galleries were allowed under the loosening COVID restrictions thanks to increasing vaccinations, the WGA found a sponsor for those in Servpro of Glenview, and just before the tournament announced a presenting sponsor in First Midwest Bank.

"We didn't have anybody out (in the gallery) last year," tournament director Chris Montagano said of the 2020 playing at Chicago Highlands. "But it raises awareness for the Evans Scholars Foundation and proceeds benefit that scholarship."

Montagano had to navigate the pandemic last year, the aftereffects this year, and next year gets to deal with an increased purse. The ESI purse was $600,000 this year, and jumps to $750,000 next year and $1 million in 2023, by edict of the PGA Tour.

"We continue to look to bring in big sponsors," Montagano said. "This event's growing, year-in and year-out. It's been difficult, given the circumstances, but we're getting there."

Pinns, Suttie, Kosin lead Hall selections

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES

Players, a teacher, and a pair of fellows who contributed in multiple ways comprise the biennial inductees to the Illinois Golf Hall of Fame.

Six in all, they run the total of individuals in the Hall to 97, and cover the entire history of golf in the state, right from the founding of Chicago Golf Club in Belmont – today’s Downers Grove – in 1893.

Most recognizable will be the names of Gary Pinns, the only five-time winner of the Illinois Open, Dr. Jim Suttie, the renowned teacher, and Phil Kosin, whose Chicagoland Golf and similarly-named radio show were must-read and must-listen outlets for two decades.

They’re joined by a trio of notables from the early days of the game here: champion players Bessie Anthony and Mason Phelps, and course designer and organizer Herbert J. Tweedie, several of whose playgrounds are still challenging today.

Those six were the selectees from an original field of 28 nominations, and survived a pair of stages, including Selection Night on May 25.

“The Committee worked very hard to select this group of six from an outstanding roster of candidates,” said Tim Cronin, chair of the selection committee and publisher of ILLINOIS GOLFER. “They range from the earliest days of the game in the state to today, and each of the six have been recognized as a leader in their aspect of golf.”

Profiles of the 19th class for the Hall:

- Bessie Anthony – The first great female player in the state, Anthony won the first three Women’s Western Amateurs from 1901-1903. As she also won Onwentsia Club’s Governor’s Cup in 1900, she won the premier Midwest women’s amateur title four straight times.

In 1903, Anthony became the first westerner to win the U.S. Women’s Amateur, beating Johnnie Anna Carpenter, one of her local rivals and the only female player to precede her as a top golfer in the Chicago area, in the championship match at Chicago Golf Club.

- Phil Kosin – Founded and ran Chicagoland Golf from 1989 until his death in 2009. He added a website when digital applications blossomed. Concurrently, he produced and hosted the Chicagoland Golf radio show on WSCR-AM 670, which continues today as The Scorecard show. He previously had worked for the original Illinois Golfer and several other golf publications, including Golf Traveler. He founded the Illinois Women’s Open in 1995, which has since had his name attached to it, and the Chicago Friends of Golf, a charity endeavor which specialized in clubs for beginning golfers.

- Mason Phelps – An Olympic champion and two-time Western Amateur winner, Phelps is one of the best players in Illinois history. A Chicagoan who played four years on scholarship at Yale, he was a member of the WGA's Olympic champion team in 1904 golf competition at Glen Echo in St. Louis and finished 15th in the individual competition.

In 1908 and 1910, he captured the Western Amateur, the second time by defeating champion Chick Evans in an all-Chicago final. In 1920, he won the CDGA Amateur. Phelps also advanced to the U.S. Amateur semifinals in 1909, losing to fellow Chicagoan Robert Gardner, and the quarterfinals in 1912.

• Gary Pinns – The only person to win the Illinois Open five times, doing so across three decades, with the first title in 1978 as an amateur. He then turned professional and captured three more Illinois Open titles in the 1980s, and the last in 1990.

Pinns was also All-ACC at Wake Forest for two years while the team's captain on a squad that included Gary Hallberg, Scott Hoch and Robert Wrenn. Today a PGA professional, he went on to become director of instruction at Oak Brook Golf Club where he's taught top competitive players at all levels and weekend amateurs.

• Dr. Jim Suttie – One of the game's foremost teachers, Dr. Jim Suttie counts Paul Azinger, Chip Beck, Jeff Sluman, Kevin Streelman and Mark Wilson among his more successful students. The DeKalb native starred at Northern Illinois, then moved into coaching and teaching.

A perennial Golf Digest best 50 and Golf Magazine top 100 teacher, Doc Suttie was the PGA's National Teacher of the Year in 2000 and is a three time Illinois PGA Teacher of the Year. He was named to Golf Magazine's teaching Hall of Fame in 2019.

• Herbert James Tweedie - A pioneer architect and popularizer of the game, Tweedie was one of Charles Blair Macdonald's few contemporaries, and had as much or more impact in the Midwest. His first major accomplishment was in keeping several of the original holes of Chicago Golf Club in play after Macdonald's group left for Wheaton in the spring of 1895.

Tweedie formed the Illinois Golf Club in 1896, and after that group merged with Riverside, formed the Belmont Golf Club in 1899. Tweedie designed 21 courses in the area, of which Midlothian and Flossmoor are the most intact. He also redesigned Onwentsia Club with Robert Foulis and H.J. Whigham in 1898, and expanded Glen View Club from nine to 18 holes the same year.

The induction ceremony and gala is planned for Fri., Oct. 1 at The Glen Club in Glenview, site of the Hall of Fame and associated exhibits.

Kowalski wins CDGA Mid-Amateur

Four months ago, Ryan Kowalski of Arlington Heights was on the outside looking in at the field of the 6th CDGA Mid-Amateur Championship, as qualifying spots filled quickly in mid-January.

Kowalski didn't let that slow him down, as his medalist-earning, 2-under 70 at the late-added Palatine Hills Golf Course qualifier propelled the 27-year-old into the championship field.

"Yeah, it's pretty amazing, when I was looking to sign up, everything was booked and I was lucky to be able to get into the Palatine Hills," said Kowalski following the championship match. "From there to be able to come here, it's a little bit amazing."

And amazing he was.

Capped off by his 3-and-2 win over Champion's David Keenan in the May 19 finale at Lake Shore Country Club in Glencoe, Kowalski hardly faced a deficit throughout match play. After wire-to-wire victories in his first two matches, Kowalski cruised to a 5-and-3 defeat of Cole Taylor of downstate Oakland to reach the championship bout. Keenan, the event's No. 2 seed, entered the day on back-to-back 4-and-3 wins.

A four at the par-4 first hole gave Kowalski yet another early lead and returned him to the driver's seat, a spot he had been most familiar with. Trading wins at Nos. 4 and 5, the duo went on to tie the remaining four holes on the front nine, keeping Kowalski's one-shot advantage in play.

"It was a great match this morning," Kowalski stated. "David and I really went back-and-forth; it was close the entire way. I was lucky to get out to a quick lead and kind of maintain that the entire way. He pushed me to hit a lot of great shots, and I think vice versa, so it was great overall."

A shift in weather after the turn didn't impact Kowalski's form, as he pushed through the impending rain and wind to win both the 10th and 11th holes to push his lead to 3 up.

"It was huge," Kowalski said of his two-straight wins. "It definitely got a little bit crazy out there with all of the wind and the rain, but I hit a couple good shots in there on both 10 and 11, and David did get in some trouble on both those holes, so being able to capitalize and hit some good shots in there really, I think, helped sway the match."

Kowalski, who plays out of Mount Prospect Golf Course, held off Keenan's attempt at a late charge after the 28-year-old, a member of Lincolnshire Fields Country Club, made birdie on the par-5 13th hole. Three consecutive pars by Kowalski secured the title, as Keenan's trouble off the tee at 16 resulted in double bogey.

“Being my first CDGA event, I didn’t really know what to expect,” Kowalski reflected. “I know I was feeling good coming into this having practiced a lot over the winter, so I knew I had a good game. To be able to see the results was huge for me.”

With his victory, Kowalski not only earned an exemption into the next five playings of the CDGA Mid-Am, but also this season’s CDGA Amateur, Illinois Amateur and Illinois Mid-Amateur championships.

Illinois Women’s Open returning

After a pandemic-forced year off, the Illinois Women’s Open returns on July 6-7 to Mistwood Golf Club in Romeoville.

Formally the 26th Phil Kosin Illinois Women’s Open – renamed after the founder and new Illinois Golf Hall of Famer a few years ago – will feature three rounds played across two days. The first day will feature 36 holes, followed by the cut. The champion will be decided via the final 18 holes on the second day.

Organizers at Mistwood hole Jessica Porvasnik, the 2019 winner, returns to defend her title.

For entry information, go to mistwoodgc.com/iwo.

Adkins GC renovation begins

Construction has begun at the Atkins Golf Club at the University of Illinois in Urbana, with the golf course construction phase leading the way. Wadsworth Golf Construction of Plainfield will handle the golf course renovation with a scope to add yardage, renovate tee boxes, bunkers and greens, and improve bridges and lakes.

Wadsworth constructed Stone Creek Golf

Club more than 20 years ago, will work alongside architect Drew Rogers for the renovation.

“Drew has spent many months working on the scope of the renovation, while consulting with the Illini staff to create a championship-caliber course,” said Jackie Szymoniak, Illinois’s assistant athletic director for golf operations. “His extensive architectural body of work includes new designs, renovations and restorations across the country. These modifications are well suited to challenge collegiate teams and provide a great test for future events. At the same time, Rogers was able to build on an already great design, to strengthen the overall experience for the general public.”

The most noticeable changes will be the full bunker renovation, which goes beyond the current bunkers and additionally focuses on strategically placing the bunkers around the course. In the new bunkers will be a premium sand, for an optimal playing experience.

In addition to slight modifications to the front and mid-range tee boxes, roughly 400 yards will be gained from additions to the back tees at Atkins Golf Club.

In an effort to provide golfers with premium putting surfaces, greens will be resurfaced, providing for long-term green stability, better playability, disease resistance and heat and cold tolerance. Additional work around the course include improvements to the irrigation system, select bridges and lakes.

The goal for work completion is this fall, with hopes of opening the course for very limited rounds, and a full opening occurring once weather breaks in spring 2022.

In addition to the golf renovations, the $5 million gift to Atkins Golf Club at the University of Illinois also includes the enhancements to the pro shop and team lounge area. The clubhouse space that once housed Kennedy’s restaurant will be converted into a newly renovated pro shop, golf staff offices and an exclusive Fighting Illini men’s and women’s golf team lounge. It’s expected to reopen this fall.

Troon, a leader in golf course management known for delivering premium conditions and exceptional customer service on more than 600 properties, was selected to manage the golf course and maintenance operation.

Nate Jordan has joined the Troon team to serve as the superintendent at Atkins Golf Club and lead the way on the agronomical front. Jordan joins the team after serving as the superintendent at Mount Hawley Country Club in Peoria. His experience also includes time at a major championship venue, Shinnecock Hills Golf Course in Southampton, N.Y.

“We feel confident that Troon will ensure our vision for championship golf and premier customer service is lived out every day and that the club is an asset to the Fighting Illini golf teams and the overall community,” Szymoniak said.
